

ADOPT AN AUTHOR REGISTRATION

This year will be the 23rd Annual Word Vancouver Festival, and it will take place from September 20 to 24. Five days to be engaged, entertained, and inspired. The festival continues to be BC's largest free book and magazine event, and there will be a few exciting changes to the site on Sunday at the Vancouver Public Library.

Participants will enjoy festival attractions including readings from the newest titles of established and emerging authors, a bustling marketplace, informative panel discussions, workshops, demonstrations, presentations, and live music. The programming will have options for readers of all ages and interests.

Anyone can become a part of the fun and have their name associated with an established event that promotes reading, writing, the spoken word, and literacy. The Adopt an Author program was created as a way to fundraise for Word Vancouver and to allow supporters to make meaningful connections to the writing community. You may find yourself adopting an award-winning writer or an emerging writer you have yet to discover.

How to Adopt an Author:

Individuals, organizations, and businesses can adopt as many authors as they like. You can adopt for a friend or have your book club join in the fun.

Simply fill out the Author Adoption form (see page 2), and make a $100 donation to Word Vancouver.

You get the following benefits:

- Information regarding your adopted author, including the time and location of their reading;
- A copy of the author's book, which you can get autographed after the reading;
- Your name announced at the reading venue when your author is introduced;
- An opportunity to meet your author on site; and
- Your name in the official program guide (distributed in September throughout Vancouver at libraries, bookstores, community centres, arts venues, and coffee shops) and on the Word Vancouver website as the presenter of your author's reading.
